The Province of the Small Colleges of America

By PROF. GEORGE A. GATES, President of Pomona College, California.

HE word college has a meaning in America different from its significance anywhere else on earth. It requires a long explanation before an Englishman or a German can know what an American educator means when he speaks of his college. At best they cannot understand it. The American college began in response to early American needs; it remains because it still meets those demands. Otherwise it would have passed on, as is the way of outgrown garments.

There has been no more distinctively formative factor in American life than these same colleges. Their product has gone into the very fiber of the nation's character.

The last quarter century has seen somewhat of a reaction toward universities, largely stimulated by John Hopkins, our first distinctive university. That movement, into which our oldest and strongest colleges, have been moving, along with our strongest state universities, was also wise, organic, timely. Quite long enough had America been

On the his dress consists principally of Apt attention given to country contrary, the best of these are growing at an even rapider rate. The distinguishing features of the college as contrasted with the university are too valuable to lose from American life. The college at its best is far less exposed to "the tendency to foster a narrowly specialized efficiency at the expense of broad and liberalizing culture." American education will not ultimately yield to that subtly fatal temptation. It is just at this point that the American college has found and will retain its own great

> The "small college" must not be so small and poor as to be mean. It must be large enough for the "college spirit," and small enough that that spirit be not impossible through the fact that the men cannot know each other. The touch between institution and student of intimate personal relation is a never-to-be-forgotten chief factor. Personality is the ultimate fact of education, as of all philosophy and life. Some sorts of initiative and leadership, escapable amid larger numbers, one forced upon most students in college. These activities are an invaluable training for the wider world. Statistics abundantly show a far larger proportion of graduates of smaller colleges "doing well," than of larger institutions. A Harvard man has recently shown that this is strikingly true of his own college, comparing Harvard, the "small college," before 1860. with Harvard "university" since that time

Our Equal Rights

By J. H. WOLFF, Senior Vice-Commander G. A. R.

There is no such thing as equality except in the political sense. It is foolish to suppose that there can be any equality of mind or of person. Some men are better than others in physical and mental endowment, and no law can change this condition. But there is an equality of rights, and that is the whole basis of the Declaration of Independence.

Every man is entitled to the God-given right to develop whatever powers he may possess, and any obstruction to this right constitutes tyranny. Whether a man's color be white or black, whether he is possessed of great or small gifts, he is, certainly, "a man for a' that," and the powers with which by the Creator he has been endowed he ought to be entitled to exercise.

This is the whole sum of the principle enunciated by the Declaration anese, who made the same desper- of Independence. # Art of Keeping Young

There is no physical rea-By DR. GEORGE F. HALL. son, no edict of nature. why men should not live 100 years and upward now. And yet age of itself is no virtue. Unless one can keep young in looks, feelings, actions and ambitions what pleasure can there be in merely piling up years?

I believe that the art of keeping young consists largely in the maintenance of a right attitude of the mind on the subject. The great apostle Paul laid down one of the most profound-philosophical truths of the ages when he said: "As a man thinketh so is he." If a woman constantly thinks gray hairs and wrinkles she will soon have both in abundance. On the other hand, if she boldly defies spectacles, powders, paints, stays, wigs, etc., and constantly asserts to her own heart and the whole world her right to remain young, nine times out of ten she will still be a girl at 40 instead of a broken down old woman ready for the grave.

If a man will defyold Father Timebya constant mental and physical declaration of his right to keep young and buoyant he can win in a walk. There is no use for a nervous collapse at 35 or 40. Most men chew too much tobacco, smoke too many cigarettes, drink too much liquor and live too fast every way. Too many mistake reckless dash for strenuousness. Repose is one of the greatest needs of the hour. Washington was a man of giant purpose and iron will, yet withal a man of magnificent repose. But for a little carelessness which precipitated pneumonia he might have lived to pass the century mark.

Sandow advises exercise and cold baths. This is all right as far as it goes. But a regimen which considers only the physical man is worth particulars send your inquiry to Terms made known on day of very little without a pure, strong mind, a clean, honorable life and a

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physic lans say, heart disease can be cured. Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has peranently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoe pathic) of regular practicing physicians. It has proved itself unique in the his tory of medicine, by being so uniformly essful in curing those diseases. Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs or of other exerciser if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers-there is something wrong with it

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. The child unloosed a chubby fist and disclosed 12 cents. "An' I want an onion," she said.

Knowledge May But Make a Man a Cearned Fool

By DR. JAMES B. ANGELL.

President of Michigan University.

HE world is full of learned fools. There is an endless variety of them. Some are vain and chattering pedants, who fill the world with noisy clamor like a company of crows over their quiddities and odds and ends of useless knowledge. They wield no influence and command no respect, because they are so utterly devoid of what we call common sense.

It is obvious that knowledge may be imported much more completely than wisdom. Given an ordinarily receptive mind in a pupil, the skillful teacher may in time communieate to him so that he shall take up and hold large measures of learning in any department of human research.

But wisdom, while the teacher may do much to secure it in his student by emphasizing the importance of it, by disciplining his pupil's mind so as to develop mental and moral equipoise, and by illustrating it in his own life, must yet come largely from natural endowment, from vigorous and patient self-culture, and from large and enriching experience through actual contact with men and with life.

By knowledge I mean the possession by the mind of facts and principles, scientific, historical, philosophical, literary, an acquaintance with ideas, the perception of truths. By wisdom I mean the power and the disposition to make a right and effective use of our faculties and our knowledge, a happy adaptation of ourselves and our resources to our

The criticism of school and college is often wide of the mark. 'Here," say men, "is your bachelor of arts ten years out of college and he has accomplished little or nothing. His diploma is good for nothing except to hold on its back the record of his lamentable failure to do anything. He has not half the wisdom of his neighbor who never saw a college." Very likely. But his diploma does not certify that he has wisdom. Wisdom is taught by long and varied experience. Neither school nor college can entirely usurp the place of that rare teacher, experience. an onion. If her mother had Her tuition is often frightfully dear and she sometimes fails of large > Rate then your knowledge at what it is really worth. It is a tremendous addition to your power, if you use it with wisdom. But do not trust it alone to carry you to success. Do not make an ostentatious display of it. The world knows pretty well how much and how little it is worth by itself. Avoid all pedantic eccentricities and learned conceit, Do not scorn to learn much of plain men, who with little learning are doing the kind of work you ought soon to do much better and more easily than they.

sue any study steadily is to have opened out before one endless reaches of research. The business world lays multitudinous hands on the ambitious youth. "There are always more opportunities in business than one can avail himself of," was the dictum of a sagacious man of affairs. The law, medicine, the pulpit, all open inviting avenues to a life of influence. Now and again there is the call of some great exigency. A Livingston has disappeared in the heart of Africa and a Stanley is summoned to penetrate the jungle and find him. To a Togo and a Kuroki comes the thrilling summons to preserve the autonomy of a fatherland and to succor an imperiled orient. To many lives not distinguished by fame comes not less imperative and decisive summons,

And yet with all these invitations and incitements how few are chosen. Life is no easy mafter.

One who has for many years represented a great state in the United States senate dies and in the appraisal of his career men say: "What opportunities for achievement." Bred in a clergyman's home, graduated from college, equipped with culture, possessed of power, what great measure in legislation was ever associated with the name? What did he accomplish beyond seizing and holding masterfully the reins for his own and his friends' advantage? Called so hopefully, but not chosen, terial beyond precedent; more debanched by greed or intoxicated by material power than any that has gone before it. It is not, declared President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton university, in his baccalaureate address to the graduating class. For the first time in the history of the university this address was delivered by a layman, the honor being conferred on President Wilson at the request of the class. The president was optimistic as to the tendencies of to-day.

The vast accumula-

Though the spiritual impulses and conceptions and undertakings of the age do not run so exclusively along the old hallowed and familiar ways of religion as in some noted days gone by, he said, the spirit of man has waxed as strong in our time as has his hand, and has given itself to works as mighty and influential.

Many petty books and homilies have been written for us of late in advocacy of a simple life, and beneath their sentiment lies a noble and enlightening truth. But there is no virtue in a plainly furnished room; a little circle of employments, a little group of friends is no certain means of grace. The simple life may be very mean and bare and unrewarding. What is worse, it may be very selfish and belittling. The kernel of the moral is simply that our life is greater than the things that we handle, and that our life is in us, not in our possessions or our social and business engagements.

Clinton Scollard, the poet, nar- if not surpass, his own. rated the other day an incident that does not speak very well for modern politics, says the New York Tribune.

"A friend of mine," said Mr. Scollard, "is the principal of a city school. He gathered the school children before him in the assembly room one day last month, and he told them that he wanted them to vote on a national flower.

" France has a national flower," he said. 'It is the lily. England's national flower is the rose, Japan's is the chrysanthemum; but weica-have no national flower at all. Little slips of paper are to be is to vote for the flower that you think best suited for America's national emblem."

"The youngsters began to think earnestly, and the paper slips were distributed. Back near the door, however, a little Italian boy was all this time making a good deal of disturbance. He seemed to be arguing heatedly with the boys round him-seemed to be dissuading them from some course or other.

"My friend noticed the noise. He called before him one of the Italian boy's neighbors, and he asked what the trouble back there was.

"'Why,' was the answer, 'Pietro doesn't want any of us to vote yet, and he says he isn't going to vote yet himself. He says people never vote till they find out how much they are to be paid."

Study of Cancer.

The cancer studies of the past year have disproven the idea that it is a purely human disease, due to peculiarities of man's living, as it has been found in all domestic animals and in other vertebrates -including fishes. It can be transmitted by inoculation, though evidently not to animals of different species. - Medical

College Athletics Promoted Loyalty and Discipline

By SAMUEL H. HUDSON. Of Dartmouth College.

HILE it is a grave question, whether athletic skill and superiority are not given too much attention in some of the institutions of our country, and whether the element of professionalism is not occasionally too prominent, the practical good reached by a well-regulated system of athletics in colleges and an enthusiastic support of such a system by all connected with the college, cannot be denied. Such a system calls for the selection of men of intelligence as well as health and good habits, and these essentials are always reckoned

AN OUTRAGE.

White clover blooms, and roses red. And green leaves wet with dew, My teeny-weeny touslehead,
Are "violets" to you;
And so you pick them right and left, And you seem loth to stop; t seems to give you wondrous joy To pick "botays for pop."

You know that other, other day, You toddled to my door, And called out: "Papa's baby's here," And stamped, and stamped the floor, With your way to make the processor. With your wee feet to make me come And ope to let you in?
I guess you have forgotten it;
I hope so! 'Twas a sin!

And I sat still and read my book

Until you quiet grew;
A story had me so absorbed
I gave no thought to you!
And, when at last I oped my door,
You lay between the rooms
All fast asleep, and in your fist
A bunch of clover-blooms!

The tears were half dried in your cheeks; You sighed, dear, as you slept;
And, dear, remorse quite filled my heart,
I knelt and could have wept!
And kissed you where you lay asleep
With tear-stained face and sad,
And in your sleep you gulped and sighed;
"Em's a botay for dad!"

And if I do that way again, And if I do that way again,
Dear baby mine, by you,
When I knock on the pearly gates
May God not let me through!
I'm glad you have forgotten it,
And love your daddy yet;
If I should live a thousand years
I never will forget!

Old King

By PAULINE PHELPS

(Copyright, 1994, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

TE LIVED up there in that little house, top the mountain, just other side of the brook, without a wife nor chick nor child, an' not a neighor settin' foot inside the door once a olue moon. Kind of lonesome existence. twould be for most folks-drive me crazy in less'n a week-but King liked t; an' if he hadn't, there wouldn't none of us ever heard him say a word. He wa'n't no hand to make a fuss over things, old King wa'n't.

'Stayed there after his mother died. keepin' batchelor's hall; never goin' anywhere, except over to the center for his paper once a week, or maybe to town meetin'; never talkin' any, an' never lookin' at a girl-kept on that way for a spell of 15 year, an' then fell in love with Lucy Pettibone to the end on't Her mother made the match; 'twa'n't none of Lucy's choosin'. He'd ought to known it! He'd ought to know there wa'n't anything in an old crank like him to take a young girl's fancy, an' one that was writin' steady to another beau besides. But he didn't, I s'pose. He spruced up an' tried to be social; an' when the engagement was out he bought a new broadcloth suit, an' come to church with her a-wearin' it. Lord, I can shut my eyes an' see 'em now, a FOUND HIM JUST OVER THE HILL marchin' up the aisle—he proud an' highheaded, an' she lookin' as if she wanted to drop through the floor. 'She's 'shamed of him, an' she shows it,' folks said. but he can't see it. Thinks she's in love with him, like as not. There's no fool ike an old fool,' says they.

"That was Sunday. An' the next mornin' Lucy run off an' met Phil Sloeum an' married him, just a week before he time set for the other weddin'.

"They hated to tell King when he rove up to the house that day, but they You'd thought 'twas a eedn't have. stray critter for all the concern he showed. Set there like a graven image, with his hands on his reins and his lips lose together, an' heard the whole thing from beginnin' to end. An' when hey got through-

"'Is that all?' says he, kind of quiet. "'That's all,' says Pettibone.

"'Then git up, Prince,' says he. 'I guess I'll go home an' do the chores.' "An' that's just what he did. an' kept a doin' 'em for 29 years; an' if her actin' o made a dif'rence, there couldn't none of us see it. He wa'r't no hand to make fuss over things, old King wa'n't.

"Phil an' Lucy come back after a year or two, an' settled at Phil's father's. Marthy-that was the one my Sam married-was born there, an' Lucy died in the upstairs west room; caught cold hangin' out clothes one day in January, an' died the next March. There come up a sort of blizzard the day of her funeral. with wind blowin' an' snow pileng up in drifts; wa'n't but ten folks went to the grave, an' old King was one of 'em. Come a wearin' them broadcloth clothes he'd bought for his weddin', an' stood there in them an' see her buried; an' you couldn't tell no more from his face how he felt about it than as if he'd been carved out of wood. Some said 'twas ecause he hadn't forgiven her, an' some said 'twas because he had; but what they said didn't make no difference

"Meet him sometimes in the wintersnow blowin' an' wind whistlin', an' he a footin' it over to get his paper-always. went just such a day, whether 'twas warm or cold. 'Pretty bad weather, King. Don't you want to ride?" 'I can git along all right,' says he. Pass by there in the mornin', when rheumatiz had hold of him, an' he'd be just crawlin' out to milk the cows. 'Must be hard for you to travel on them feet of your'n. Don't you want some help?' If he did. ne wouldn't own it. Never spoke a pleasant word; couldn't make him! Just shut his teeth an' answer, surly as he always did: 'I'm a gittin' along all right,' says he-an' that's all. "But when Sam got ready to marry Marthy, Phil Slocum sent him an invite to the weddin', an' he come. Come in that same broadcloth suit he'd wore to her mother's funeral-pretty well motheaten, 'twas-an' with his hair combed an' slick. Didn't say a word. It made some of the women nervous, because he set there like a tombstone, an' never moved nor smiled. But when a man THE SUNDAY BIBLE SCHOOL don't go anywhere but twice a lifetime, 'tain't to be expected he'll act like other Lesson in the International Series folks

"An' he didn't see 'em married, after all. I told Sam them bridesmaids would do somethin' out of the way, an' they did (Prepared by the "Highway and By--turned over a lamp, an' set the house on fire! Cold down to zero, too, an' all time! Hurryin' an' shoutin' an' confusion—ev'rybody yellin' something different—an' Marthy pretty near in hysterics because she'd left some things she'd been plannin' to wear on the wince.

"An' one kind of craziness breeds more, I guess, for before we'd got her quiet there was another stir-old King the land, unto all fountains of water, and a tryin' to rush into the house, an' two or three holdin' him back. 'Let me go in ther',' says he, strugglin' an' strainin' 'You're crazy,' says Will Black. 'You won't never come out alive.'

"'Oh, I'll come out fast enough!' says old King, ugly as ever. He was all crippled with rheumatiz, but he give Black a fister that sent him reelin', an' pushed into the door an' upstairs. An' we all held our breath an' stood there, a starin' up.

"'T'wan't over two minutes, couldn't have been; an' then Sam give a yell: Back old King against a thousand for doin' what he sets out to!' We all yelled then; for a gust of wind had blew the smoke, an' from where 'twas cleared we see old King a comin' down, steppin' slow an' firm, with his hands shut tight an' sort o' smillin'-put me in mind of that day he walked with Lucy into church-come walkin' down the stairs should be destroyed, as it would be impossible to check the ravages of flying locusts.

The method adopted during the last visitation, that of 1890, was to dig deep between which and the advancing swarm huge heaps of straw were laid and fired. Any locusts which succeeded in escaping the flames and smoke fell into the trenches, where they were destroyed by natives under the supervision of English instructors.

It is a providential habit of young locusts never to turn back or aside when once started, no matter what obstacles are put in their way.

unto all brooks: peradventure we may find grass to save the horses and the mules alive, that we lose not all the beasts. 6. So they divided the land between them to pass throughout it; Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way

7. And as Obadiah was in the way, behold, Elijah met him; and he knew him, and fell or his face, and said, Art thou that y lord Elijah? And he answered him, I am: go tell thou wouldst deliver thy servant into the hands of Ahab, to siay me?

Behold, Elijah is here.
12: And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee, that the Spirit of the Lord shall carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he shall slay me: but I thy servant fear the Lord from my youth.

13. Was it not told my lord what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the Lord, how I hid an hundred men of the lord's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water? them with bread and water!

14. And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here: and he shall slay 15. And Elijah said, As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely shew myself unto him to-day.

16. So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and old him: and Ahab went to meet Elijah. THE LESSON includes the three verses following the lesson text, which give us the account of the prophet's interview with Ahab. There is no parallel in Chronicles. GOLDEN TEXT.—"I thy servant fear the Lord from my youth."—I Kings 18:12. TIME .- About three and one-half years after the first appearance of Elijah to Ahab.

Comparing Scripture with Scripture. The Prophet's Return: Note that:

(1) It was timed by God; "after many days"-God always acts in "the fullness of time." Gal. 4:4; Eph. 1:10, etc. It was not for Elijah to know until God spoke. Remember Jesus' rebuke, Acts

(2) It was ordered by God. When God said "Go" it was safe for Elijah to return. The place of peace and safety is with God .- Ps. 31:15.

(3) It meant blessing. God in the person of His servant Elijah was to return to the land. God's withdrawal meant drought. God's return was to bring rain. God sends blessings when conditions permit. Ps. 86:5, 15. "I will Tuesday nights in each month. All Evisiting send rain upon the earth." We talk flippantly of the weather the weather-forecaster gives us, and forget that nature is under God's control, and that He sends the sunshine and the rain .- Jer 14:22; Ps. 147:8.

(4) Elijah found conditions changed. Ahab had been searching for the prophet with murder in his heart (v. 10); now he is seeking pasturages with anxious dread (vs. 5, 6). The famine had reached to the king's gate (v. 2). How the prophet's words when predicting the drought must have burned into his soul. How the consciousness of God must have been forced upon him. The long and terrible drought had subdued the willful spirit of king and people. had gained for God a hearing .- Hosea 5:15; Ps. 78:34; 107:39.

Meeting with Ohadiah.-Obadiah was a Godly man (v. 3) in a Godless household, a man who served God in secret. How the wicked turn to the righteous in time of trouble. Obadiah went out eeking a spring of water, and he found the one whose prayer would bring abundance of rain. (John 7:37-39.) diah's faithfulness won for him the honor of the first meeting with Elijah. But he was terrified at Elljah's com mand. Like many Christians to-day. the fear of man was upon him, and he forgot that the God who sent him would care for him.

Meeting with Ahab.-Elijah sent for the king. The prophet went to meet the God-fearing Obadiah, but he summons the wicked Ahab to come to him.
